

— BASED ON THE MEMOIR —
THE LAST ROCKETMAN

THE LAST ROCKETMAN

RUN TIME: 80-90 min

STATUS: Final stages of post-production

LOG LINE:

THE LAST ROCKETMAN is a wild ride through the high-octane subculture of jetpacks from Cold War showmanship to modern-day sky cowboys. At its heart is one pilot's improbable comeback, overcoming adversity and chasing one last flight after a crash that nearly killed him. Along the way: rivalries, scandals, and the pursuit of glory, all in the name of strapping a bomb to your back and calling it progress. It's part history, part true crime, part human grit, and 100% proof that some people just refuse to stay grounded.

SYNOPSIS:

This ain't your grandpa's snooze-fest of a documentary. We're here to examine the timeless fascination with the sky, the allure of freedom it represents, and our ceaseless pursuit to conquer it. Opening with the early days of Rocketbelts, the film captures the pioneering spirit of the "Rocketman." Only a few people in history have been just crazy enough to take their dream of personal flight and actually make it a reality.

We'll dive into the subculture of Rocketbelts/jet packs, highlighting a fascinating cast of characters who live, breathe, and dream of flight. Slick motion graphics propel us through the intricacies of the technology and cinematic re-enactments take viewers through true crime stories so wild that even Hollywood's best writers wouldn't have thought of them.

Intertwined in the journey is a more personalized story of redemption. A decade after a near-fatal accident, one of the famed jetpack pilot's journey proves that sometimes the greatest triumph isn't breaking a world record, it's getting back up after you've been knocked down. The Rocketbelt becomes more than a machine; it's a metaphor for the human spirit: bruised, stubborn, but still reaching for the sky.

Special guests like NASA engineers, Astronauts, famous action sports athletes and even a celebrity narrator all provide unique perspectives on what it means to fly. All this wrapped up in a stylistic aesthetic will send viewers on a fun rollercoaster ride and leave them sputtering, "Holy Sh*t, where's my frickin' jetpack?"

THE TEAM:

Production Company:	Dunn Media Group
Executive Producer:	Eric Dunn, Matthew Hatchette, Dan Schlund
Director:	Jonny Zeller
Story Consultant:	P.G. Cuschieri
Producers:	Tatiana Kelly, P.G. Cuschieri

NOTABLE CAST:

Dan "Rocketman" Schlund – Rocketbelt pilot, stuntman
Travis Pastrana – Action sports icon and founder of Nitro Circus.
Chuck Norris – Duh
Richard Browning – Gravity Industries founder and real-life "Iron Man."
Terry Virts – Former NASA astronaut and ISS Commander.
Leigh Coates – First female jetpack pilot, helicopter pilot.
Colby James West – Professional skier, X Games medalist, jetpack pilot in training.